How to Write and Answer Classified Want Ads

How to Write a Want Ad to Get a Correspondent

HE letters a business house sends out speak its character. No matter how many letters mailed, if but ONE gives a wrong impression, it will take dozens to right the damage done. On the other hand, a good Correspondent is as valuable as a good salesman. Take care in selecting your letter writers. No better place than a Want Ad to get the kind of man you want.

A Correspondent should have BRAINS, judgment, tact, steady habits, and a command of free expression. He should have the ability for grasping and handling DETAILS, he should be neat, accurate, and know how to write a clear, concise letter, one that will create in the mind of the receiver a FAVORABLE impression.

A prominent customer of a great corporation made the remark to one of this firm's traveling overseers that he wished to have investigated "a long line of complaints against the main office."

"So many of your firm's letters," said the complaining customer, "seem to be written by children. But there is one man you have who signs his letters W. A. J. whom I consider most fascinating, clear and courteous in all his letters." "Why," he continued, "does your firm not employ MORE

W. A. J.'s?" The above illustration is experienced in everyday business life. Use the same care in selecting your Correspondents that you do in choosing your Cashier. One handles your money-but the other takes care of your REPUTATION. State the special nature of your business and the sort of correspondence to be handled. Suggest the opportunity your position offers, and that salary will be in proportion to ability.

Example

WANTED—CORRESPONDENT BY AN HASTERN corporation, manufacturers of office furniture; must have a man with experience along this line, though not essential if otherwise qualified; we want an educated, tactful man who understands people; prefer a man about 30 years of age and married; ateady habits, judgment, ability to write a clear, business-like letter absolutely necessary; no barriers in the way of the man who will take advantage of every chance to make himself valuable; salary paid to start will be liberal and increase as fast as the man grows in ability. Give full particulars as to past business life and position. Address, etc.

O sum up—ASK for a highgrade man by stating the vital qualifications. The clearer you impress the fact in your Want Ad that you MUST have the man who can FILL your wants, the surer you will be to get the RIGHT man.

[NOTE.—This is the eighth of a series of Practical Talks on the writing and answering of Want Ads for THE STAR'S Classified Pages. The idea is to make suggestions that any Advertiser can apply to the Want Ad he inserts, no matter what the need. These Talks are for the USER—who wants to increase his results. Watch for future Talks.
